The woman was apparently not more than twenty-seven years old. She was 5 feet 2 inches in height and weighed 130 pounds. She had long, thick, wavy brown hair, which grew in profusion, and in life she must have been an uncommonly prepossessing woman.

There were no discoverable marks of violence on her person, and the police are at a loss to fathom the circumstances of her death. How she came in the water, stripped of clothing, puzzles them greatly, and the one solution they offer is that she jumped or was thrown from one of the passenger steamers that ply up and down the Sound or Hudson

DISCORD IN THE ELEVENTH.

The word harmony has been stricken from the vocabulary of the Eleventh District Republicans. War with a big W has taken its place. The faction beaded by Chief Immigration Commissioner John E. Milholland has invoked the aid of the courts to compet Col. George Bliss's forces to permit Milholland's followers to inspect the rolls and books of the organization, now in possession of Col. Bliss's friends. A temporary injunction, restraining them from withholding the documents, has been obtained from Judge Gildersleeve.

The Republican primaries will be held April 15, and the Milholland faction will try to carry the day. To prevent them from getting an omical list of Republican voters in the district, Col. Bliss will try to have the hearing of the motion to make the injunction made permanent put off until after that date.

Meantime a petition addressed to chairman Brookfield and Jacob M. Patterson, of the Republican County Committee, is being circulated in the Union League Club by the opponents of Col. Bliss in that organization, requesting the prompt intervention of the Committee in the fight, and calling for a re-enroll-ment and reorganization of the Eleventh District.

The coroners unanimously favor the change of quarters and deem the new location preferable and more convenient than the private residence they now occupy at No. 124 Second avenue. It was generally believed when they moved there that a change would be necessary.
